Anemo 'Pray'

Written in homage to BBC war journalist John Simpson who was mistakenly bombed by the U.S, Anemo's new single 'Pray' explores moral issues such as sacrifice and conflict.

The lyrics are sung with passion against a background of crashing guitar and punctuative drums- a style reminiscent of Evanescence.

“With this record we wanted a sound that was more focused towards the energy and aggression of our live set,” explains keyboardist Kingsley Sage.

They have certainly created a song that makes an impact and is powerful, however there is a certain familiar pop-rock element. The word Anemo derives from the Greek 'Anemos', meaning changing forms, and with their musical potential I have no doubt that the band will continue to evolve, exploring new sounds and issues.
